Software contracts. The law takes the view that contracts for the acquisition of software are not sales of goods contracts. This is important in determining what legislation is applicable. Generally, contracts to acquire software do not transfer copyright or other intellectual property rights.

With comprehensively updated content and up-to-the minute commentary, Software Cotntracts, 4th edition is the best way to keep abreast of current practice in software contract law - a must for all legal professionals working in this area of rapid development and constant change.

Updated and revised to incorporate effect of Data Protection Directive and implications for outsourcing software to third parties, this comprehensive set of new precedents includes IT Services Outsourcing Agreement, Data Processing Agreement and Transborder Data Flow Agreement. The precedents come with comprehensive footnotes to guide users on appropriate use and drafting. In reponse to market feedback and reviews, a standardised style of boilerplate precedent has been developed with additional precedents included on an accompanying CD-Rom. The test also now includes contracts relating to hardware giving practitioners the opportunity to cross-refer to these when considering software contracts. It should prove a valuable reference tool for commercial practitioners and in-house lawyers who advise companies on the negotiation and drafting of software licence agreements.
